Publication

Journal Articles

Kim, K., Maie, R., Suga, K., Miller, Z., & Hui, B. (2021). Revisiting Williams (2005) with academic and non-academic samples: An individual differences study. Stage 2, received in-principle acceptance for a special issue in Language Learning.

Maie, R. & DeKeyser, R. M. (2020). Conflicting evidence of explicit and implicit knowledge from objective and subjective measures. Studies in Second Language Acquisition, 42, 359–382.

Maie, R. (2019). Interview with Nick C. Ellis. MSU Working Papers, 10.

Referred Book Chapters

Maie, R. & Salen, B. (2021). Blustery with an occasional downpour: An analysis of target discourse in media weather forecasts. The Cambridge handbook of task-based language teaching edited by Mohammad J. Ahmadian and Michael H. Long.

Thesis/Dissertation

Maie, R. (2018). Explicit and implicit cognitive aptitudes, L2 outcome measures, and learning of morphosyntax under an incidental condition. Unpublished master's thesis.

Committee: Drs. Robert M. DeKeyser, Michael H. Long, and Steven J. Ross.

Maie, R. (2016). Automaticity in L2 learning: Theories, findings, and implications. Unpublished bachelor's thesis. Committee: Drs. Siwon Park and Yasuko Ito.

Presentations

Maie, R. (2021). Arbitrary choices, arbitrary results: A multiverse analysis of L2 reaction time data. Paper presented for the American Association for Applied Linguistics 2021.

Maie, R. (2020). Testing skill acquisition stages in language learning: A case of vocabulary learning and practice. Invited to the PhD student workshop in the ESRC-JSLARF Symposium 2020.

Maie, R. & Ma, W. (2020). Investigating the relationship between TOEFL scores and international students' academic success: A meta-analysis. Paper presented at the Second Language Research Forum 2020.

Maie, R. (2020). Eyeing acceptability judgment task: Automaticity moderates different L2 knowledge and processing. Paper accepted for the American Association for Applied Linguistics 2020.

Maie, R. (2019). Does automaticity moderate different types of L2 knowledge use in grammaticality judgments? An eye-tracking study. Paper presented at the Second Language Research Forum 2019.

Maie, R. (2019). Demystifying the complexity of individual differences under incidental conditions: A conceptual replication and extension. Paper presented at the American Association for Applied Linguistics 2019.

Maie, R. & DeKeyser, R. M. (2018). Beyond boundaries: Combining methodological approaches to research on acquisition of explicit and implicit knowledge under an incidental condition. Paper presented at the Second Language Research Forum 2018.

Projects

Jackson, D. O. & Maie, R. (2020). Implicit and statistical learning as predictors of second language outcomes: A preliminary synthesis and meta-analysis. A book chapter in Language aptitude theories and practice: Pushing the boundaries (edited by Edward Wen, Peter Skehan, and Richard Sparks).

Maie, R. & Godfroid, A. (2020-). Research design and methods for studying optimal practice conditions: Synthesis. A book chapter in Practice and automatization in second language: theory, research, methods, and practical implications in 2022 (edited by Yuichi Suzuki).

Maie, R. (2020). Testing skill acquisition stages in language learning: A case of vocabulary learning and practice. For the second qualifying paper.
